

Concordia Yearbook To Be Published Soon

Final preparation of the Concordia College yearbook was completed recently, and the material was sent to the publisher for printing. This year will mark the second time that the yearbook appears under the new name of Corona Borealis — Crown of the North. A change in name from The Canadian to Corona Borealis, made two years ago, has met with the approval of its readers.

Professor A. H. Miller, Concordia's public relations director, serves as adviser to the Corona staff, which consists of editor Raymond Ensminger, business manager Larence Koehler, and co-editor Anola Lange. Professor Arnold Guebert and Alfred Maier were connected with the Yearbook in the capacity of staff photographers.

The current issue of the Yearbook is expected the end of May and will be distributed to all pastors of the Lutheran Church-Canada for use in student recruitment for Concordia College. The advertising in the Concordia Yearbook was for the most part secured by student teams as a result of city-wide solicitation carried out last fall and winter.

Since Concordia is a residential school, most students returned to their homes to spend the Easter recess with their families and friends. Six students, however, are spending the holiday at Concordia, mainly on account of distance from their homes. All the western provinces are represented among these students.

They are Rodney Wilczak, Vancouver, B.C.; Edwin Crape of Langley, B.C.; Gerald Single of Plumas, Manitoba; Linden Dressler of Churchbridge, Saskatchewan; Bruce Glennie of Uranium City, Saskatchewan; and William Torgerson, Edmonton.

The board of directors of the Alberta-British Columbia District, affiliated with the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod, is currently seeking a suitable site on which to erect a new district office building in the vicinity of Concordia College. At present the Office is located in the basement of the home of executive secretary Dr. W. C. Eifert, at 11231 - 66 Street, Edmonton.
