Building Bridges

How Can People of Different Religions Come to Greater Shared Understanding?

Concordia's fledgling School of Theology, Ethics, and Leadership is privileged to host international expert in the field of Arab-American and Muslim-Christian relations:

Carl Medearis

Carl acts as a catalyst for a number of current movements in the Middle East to promote peace-making and to promote cultural, political and religious dialog leading toward reconciliation. He is the author of the acclaimed book on these issues, Muslims, Christians and Jesus. As well as the intriguing non-fiction text, Tea With Hezbollah, co-authored with Ted Dekker. His most recent book is Speaking of Jesus: the art of not-evangelism.

Carl's experience of living in Beirut, Lebanon for 12 years (with his family) along with his continued multiple trips annually to the region, and his incredible access to high ranking leaders from all camps has made him a highly sought after expert in the fields of Muslim-Christian and Arab-American relations, as well as the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. Whether Carl is visiting with one of the leaders of Hezbollah, a Congressman from the US, or an Israeli attorney as they work together on peace initiatives there is no doubt the conversation is honest, thought provoking, and somehow about Jesus.

Call of Duty: How Theology Deals with Zombies

by Dr. Bill Anderson, Professor of Religious Studies, CUCA

The next Philosophy and Religious Studies Colloquium is to be held Thursday, October 30th at 3:30 pm in HA 015. A reception will follow at 4:30 pm in the Faculty Lounge (HA 301). Our topic: This multimedia lecture deals with zombies from a Christian perspective. It defends the beauty, integrity and value of Pop Culture as a reflection of God's goodness in General Revelation. It demonstrates the complexity and validity of Religion and Pop Culture Studies with a test case from Kevin Sherwood's Call of Duty song "Always Running".

After systematically unpacking the depth of ideas and themes in the song, the lecture will then redeem the negative ideas of zombie culture through Theology (Law and Gospel).
