SAFETY PRESENTATION

OCTOBER 4TH
ROOM HA 015
12-1 P.M.

When you make your workplace safe for emergency responders who may have to attend a premise, you make it safer for everyone.

The John Petropoulos Memorial Fund (JPMF) safety messages provide a different perspective on workplace safety – that of an emergency responder who may have to attend a premise during an emergency, such as a crime in progress, a fire, or a medical situation.

Join guest speaker Ms. Lindsey Jepson, as she offers her perspective on safety issues of a paramedic who's been in the trenches for a number of years, working as a paramedic and EMT.

Growing up as the daughter of a Calgary police officer, Lindsey had a strong appreciation of emergency responder work from a very early age. After having three children, she began her career with Calgary Metro EMS. Recalling very clearly the day that Calgary lost one of “our finest”--Constable John Petropoulos in such a senseless way had a strong impact on Lindsey.

The opportunity to help further John’s legacy by sharing workplace safety messages is a true privilege for her. Lindsey offers first hand, 'in the trenches' experiences of

2000 – Constable John Petropoulos

At 5:40 a.m. on September 29, 2000, Constable Petropoulos and his partner were dispatched to investigate a break-in at a business in Southeast Calgary, where it was suspected someone was inside the building. Upon arrival, officers began to check the exterior and interior of the building. Constable Petropoulos entered the building, together with other officers and the Canine Unit, and climbed a ladder onto a mezzanine area. He lost his footing and fell through ceiling tiles onto the concrete floor nine feet below. He was rushed to Foothills Hospital with severe head injuries and was pronounced dead early that afternoon. An investigation later revealed that, although the call was legitimate, a break-in had not occurred.

Constable Petropoulos, 32, was with the Service for four years and was well regarded by his fellow officers. He was survived by his wife, parents and two siblings.
