MEET JAMES

by Carolyn Walter

What most of us struggle with, James Bighorn, since the age of 4, succeeds with a mere stroke of a pencil or brush. From the beginning days of copying his favourite comic book heroes in detail, James has striven to emulate Robert Bateman, and with a look at his portfolio, he can be viewed as having achieved his artistic goal.

In Bateman-like style, James's art is primarily derived from the wildlife for which he has a deep love and respect. He successfully projects his deep appreciation of his experiences from growing up in the country on paper or canvas. Although he wishes to be recognized as a wildlife artist, his ability transcends to other genres. Native art and photography are other outlets for his creative energy.

Blessed with a natural ability that never required formal instruction, a few art classes did see him at the back of the room. The instructors placed him there to work independently, since they had nothing new to teach him. To James, he simply "drew what he saw." He gains pleasure out of seeing others enjoying his work.

This, to him, is "better than money."

THE CITADEL OPENS WITH A LAUGH

by Charles Weaver
 Sept. 14, 1995

The Citadel Theater began the 1995/96 season, under new Resident Director, Duncan McIntosh, opening with a comedy titled, "Breaking Legs," starring CBC award-winning actor, Louis Del Grande.

For those of you unfamiliar with stage productions, or simply not fans of the theater, Breaking Legs, by playwright Tom Dulack, demonstrates reasons why there is a wealth of satisfaction to be found in the theater. By creating a look at one man's dream Lou Graziano (Edward Atienza), Dulack invites the audience on an excursion from chuckles to laughter.

As in most performances there is always an actor who brings his/her talents to the forefront. Del Grande is that actor. His presence and efficacy throughout the play are true indicators of the harmony and direction he brings to the stage. (He laughs without moving his lips).

The supporting cast is superb!! Angie Graziano (Stephanie Wolfe) and the professor played by Larry Yachimec add spice and slapstick. As Phil Hartman (Saturday Night Live) might say, together they are "sassy!" There is one character whose performance is delectable, none other than Tino De Felice (Jean -Pierre Fournier). His one-liners and word-finding skills are ingeniously displayed. Mr. Fournier's portrayal of Tino is an absolute delight. (Loved his suit)

Breaking Legs is a comedy to be enjoyed, savored and appreciated. If, for no other reason than having a break from the real world, spend a few dollars and get to the Citadel. You will not only feel refreshed for supporting the arts, but also walk away with a satisfied smile.

Breaking Legs runs from September 13 to October 1.

VP'S UPDATE

Have you ever fallen asleep in class? How about in church? I admit I'm guilty on all counts.

This also happened to a guy named Eutyclus while the apostle Paul was going on and on in one of those quadruple overtime sermons. (Acts 20:7-12) Unfortunately for him, he was sitting in a window at the time and fell three stories to his imminent death. However, Paul being a reasonable and compassionate fellow (it was past midnight)—let alone what it would do to his reputation if it got out that someone had died from his preaching—threw his arms around the guy, raised him back to life, and then went on talking till dawn!

Anyways, we don't want people to fall asleep, and we definitely don't want them to die, so instead we're inviting you to join in the conversation. I'm talking about a group on campus called the Eutyclus Society that wants to provide opportunities for students to get together with other students to discuss life, Christianity, and the Bible. I also know how poor some of us are and that's why we're going to be getting together occasionally to do cheap but fun things like eat FREE pizza, watch X-files on the big screen, play cross campus capture the flag, rock climb the front of the school, and/or just hang out.

For more information on the Eutyclus Society please stop by my office anytime (that's the CCSA VP's office). Remember no membership fees, no nothing, just come and participate.

Yours in Christ,
 Dave Haberstock

OFF THE CUFF

by Charles Weaver
Editor in Chief

Somebody out there has to care. Then again, perhaps no one does. From observing individuals, it has become quite noticeable that personal stands and viewpoints are becoming more reclusive. Why? Is it because of a desperate need for acceptance? Is it because we fear being stigmatized? Or, is it because we dread being ostracized from the rest of the community? Whatever the reason, let's be honest and admit that complacency has robbed many of their spirits.

Where is this leading, you may be asking? Well, it has to do with the use of the infamous 'F' word. Why the concern? Mainly because of its prevailing use in every day language, (the lazy man's vocabulary). It is used to show contempt, it is used to describe individuals or situations, it is used as a noun, adjective, or an adverb, let's face it, it is used too often.

Undoubtedly, a crusade to eliminate this word from the English vocabulary would be futile. However, as individuals, we do have a right to voice opposition to its use, especially when it is used inappropriately. To get a better understanding of the concern, open your ears around campus and listen to how often the word is used. It's absolutely disgusting how individuals are so non-chalant about what spews from their mouths. Get a vocabulary, please!! Why do you have to resort to the word F _ _ _ !, when you are literally tongue-tied in a conversation. For many using this ugly word is an unconscious habit, however, as your mind broadens and your language skills improve, surely you can work on finding another utterance to replace the repugnant 'F' word.

Perhaps we can start a fine system, say a dime. This could work not only to reduce its use, but also to pay for a gymnasium for this campus. Actually, forget the fine system, a better solution is to think about others around you who dread the sound of the "F" word.

Think about it, people are becoming more aware of environmental issues, yet, there are still some of the same people informed as they may be who continue to pollute the air with vulgar spillage.

he just allows his feelings to go and something happens. With no pre-planned concept of what he wishes to create, he puts "pencil on paper then it takes off." He never truly knows what he will be the end product. Like many artists, James becomes attached to his art to the extend that he is unable to sell the originals, so sells them as prints instead.

Even though he has sold his art nationally since the age of 15, James never considered it as something out of which a living could be made. After a number of years as a professional driver and a carpenter, he became tired of working for others, so James looked to his art again, but this time as a possible career. James entered the UCEP program at Concordia. His goal is to continue his studies at Grant MacEwan in the Arts Administration program to better

BOOK SALE SAVES

This fall's used Book-Buy-Back and Sale was a resounding success! Almost 400 books were purchased and then resold at discount prices to students. As usual, we ran out of books and were not able to help everyone, but those who were early saved themselves a small fortune. Overall, it's estimated students saved in excess of $4700 on text books.

The proceeds from the sale are set aside for future projects such as a student lounge or recreation facility.

The CCSA thanks all those who participated in both the Buy-Back and Sale. We would also like to state that though it was regrettable, it was necessary to turn away many books. This was done for two primary reasons; first, there was a need to set limits on how many of each of the texts purchased because it was impractical to tie up thousands of dollars in unsold books; second, many texts are quickly outdated and are no longer of any use.

There will be another Buy-Back and Sale January 4-5, and 8-9, 1996.

PARK WHERE?

Good morning, it's a pleasure to add my welcome to every one this 1995-1996 school year at Concordia and in particular to the "Parking Lot". I hope we can have an amicable relationship and in order to foster that idea, I would like to outline a few points as follows:

Right off the "bat" let me dispel any fear or rumor that "the lot is full". Since November of 1994 this has not occurred.

Attached is a parking map of Highlands campus. The area shown as "//////////" is student parking. The area shown as "000000000000" is staff parking only. The area shown as "VVVVVVVV" is visitor parking only.

Parking is enforced from 8:00 am to 8:00 pm, Monday to Saturday inclusive. One dollar (loonie or quarters) will get you a permit which is good for all day. We do not enforce "in and out" payment. Permit machines are shown with an X on the map. There are 4 of them. Parking is free at Bellevue Community Hall, please do not park in area marked "NO PARKING".

If you have any questions or problems, contact the By-Law Officer (Commissionaire) or administration. Let us know and we will help when possible.

Being typical homo-sapiens, I have some last words - Read the signs and be sure there is a permit face up and visible on your dash.

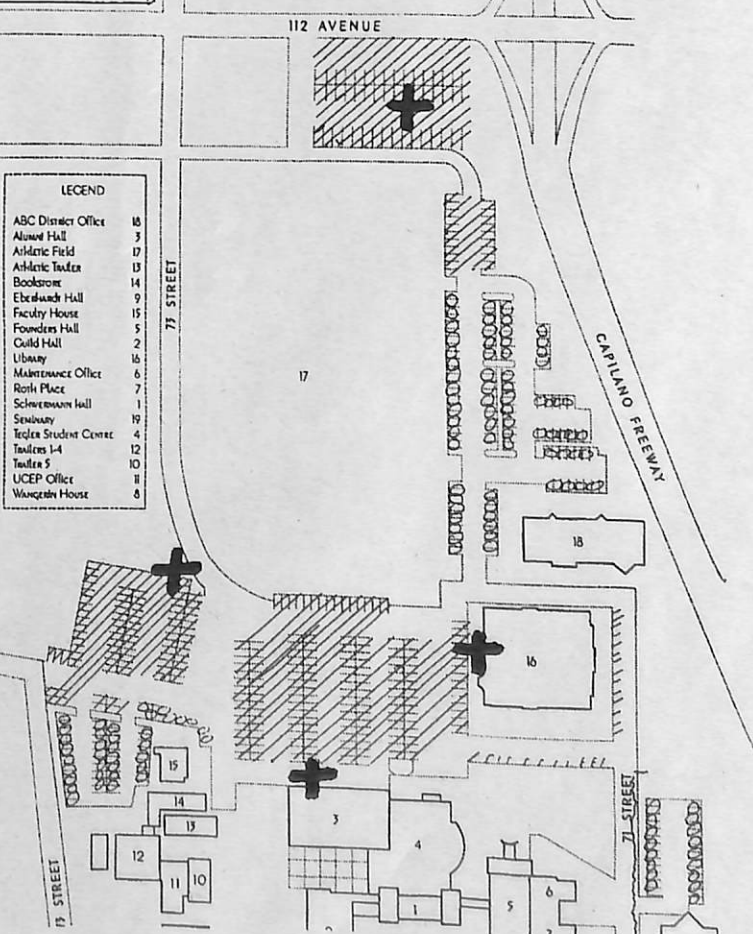

Good luck in your studying,

KUFELD SPEAKS

Here we are at the end of September, and it's back to the grind already! On behalf of the CCSA, I would like to extend best wishes in your classes and I wish you all the best. With Welcome Week behind us, I would like to share a few thoughts about the week's activities. Rapid Fire Theatre had Tegler Centre laughing and smiling on Monday, and a good time was had by all who saw them. The comedy they presented was very off-the-cuff, and most students appreciated the troupe's outrageous sense of humour. It has been brought to my attention that some students were offended by Rapid Fire's sense of humour, but I assure you, it was not meant to offend.

On Wednesday, the roots-folk band The Piemyn played to a rather quiet and subdued crowd, but in general, I have heard good reviews from students. Their use of profanity in their lyrics is questionable, but CCSA would like to mention that the band was asked to refrain from using this sort of language.

Friday's sumo tournament was enjoyed by all and I would not be surprised if we did it again sometime in the next semester. The turnout for the events for Welcome Week was quite impressive, especially for Rapid Fire Theatre and the sumo tournament.

Tuesday and Thursday's movies were enjoyed by many students, and the movie days will probably become more common as the year progresses. If you have any suggestions as to what kind of movies you would like to see, please come by the CCSA kiosk or drop into the CCSA offices anytime.

Welcome Week wrapped up on Saturday with a trip to Quest for Adventure for a day of Paintball. All those who attended had a blast and students have already been asking when we will be going again. The answer: we will definitely be going again next semester, probably after finals are complete in April. For those of you who missed Paintball the first time, you'll have another chance to join in the fun.

The CCSA has worked hard to make these events happen for you, and I encourage your input and suggestions as to what you want to see us doing. After all, it's your money, so tell us how you want it spent! Our door is always open, and your suggestions mean a lot to us. Without them, we wouldn't be able to function.

On behalf of CCSA, I would again like to wish you best of luck in our studies, especially with mid terms looming around the corner. Please bear in mind that we are here to help you and to make your experience here at Concordia College more enjoyable. I'm looking forward to hearing from you soon.

A REGISTRAR'S WORK IS NEVER DONE

by Pam Shabi

Even after all the students have registered, believe it or not, there is still work to be done at the registrar's office. For example, during the first week of classes many students add or drop courses. One of the most common complaints is limited course space. At the time of registration many students are told that a particular course is full, however, during the first five days of the semester you might have a chance to take the class you want, providing the space is available and you have the appropriate prerequisite. So if there is a course you want to take next semester, or want to change your schedule, you would have from January 3 to January 9 to make the changes.

Another common problem is dropping courses. The deadline for dropping a course has already passed, but if you enrolled in a course and are finding it increasingly difficult to continue, you may withdraw from the course. If you withdraw from now until November 10, no mark will be shown on your transcript for that course. If you withdraw after November 11, withdrew failing (WF) will be shown on your transcript.

Anyone interested in transferring to another institution can find calendars, contact numbers and a free guide available as well. In addition, the registrar's office has planners to help with course selection, requirements and general information. There are also special help sessions held in the fall and the spring to students. No dates have been set yet.

Much of this information is in the calendar and the agenda book, however if you still have any questions stop by the registrar's office or make an appointment. After all they are there to help you.

DER'S SOMTHIN STRANGE AT DAT DER COLLEGE!

There is something strange going on at Concordia. It's one of those things that is above and beyond a logical explanation, and it's causing some problems on our campus. For instance, have you been to a chapel yet this year? Well, there are actual Concordia students sharing their faith and lives, and not just one or two! On College chapel days there must be over 50 students, and it's not just that angelic choir you all know and love! On High School days you might not get a seat if you come late! Students meet at the school in the morning to pray and some have started a student led, student run, student body Bible discussion/Fun Group called Euty-chus, who want to meet once a week on the weekend for a bible study and then just spend the rest of the night having a blast doing 3 on 3 basketball in Tegler, Glow in the Dark Soccer, Big Screen movies, Campus wide Capture the Flag...Wow, Hey! Then there's prime time, Wednesday nights at 9:00, a devotional bible study group and don't forget about that campus chaplain Pastor Steck, who always has time to talk about pretty much everything!

It's an exciting time to be here at Concordia. People are talking without shame to people that are listening. If you haven't checked out one of these things yet, you're missing out. Take a look around for posters and stuff. It can only make your year better. And if you want to drop by and talk about one of these things, or anything else going on, then do it! The door to the CCSA is always open, and the council has this annoying habit of tracking me down when I'm out.

SO WHAT'S UP WITH BILLY'S MASK?

by Matthew Cassie

For those of you who ventured over to the Oilers training camp earlier this month, you may have noticed something strange about Bill Ranford. The veteran Oiler goaltender reported to camp with a new contract and a new face mask. Now what's strange about that you ask. Well instead of sporting the traditional Oiler blue and orange, Billy's mask was teal and bronze. So people may conclude that Billy thought he was being traded, and thus painted his mask the color of his new team. True, the Oilers did state publicly that they would not change their uniforms this year, but perhaps that was just to kill the talk of the town. In Calgary, Boston, Washington, and the New York Islanders all sporting up to -date uniforms it would surprise me to think that the Oilers would be happy in their out-of-date uniforms. Now I know many of the traditionalists like the blue and orange, but lets face it those threads just don't cut it any more. The Oilers have to tap into the will of merchandising dollars in order to stay competitive in today's hockey market. So when would be a better time for a young, fast, exciting, play-off bound team to support their new uniforms, than at this year's regular season home opener. Its time for this team to step into the future. Now all of this is pure speculation on my part, I have no hard evidence and there could be a perfectly good reason for Billy's mask. If I'm right though, you can say you read it here first. I can't wait for opening night.

1995 Mayoralty Forum

The Edmonton Chamber of Commerce and The Edmonton Students' Alliance are excited to be co-sponsoring a major election event. The 1995 Mayoralty Forum will provide an opportunity for chamber members, students and the public at large to hear and question the mayoralty candidates' views on issues that are vitally important. These critical issues, as identified in the Angus Reid poll, include the economy, transportation, and city governance. Additionally, copies of the chamber's analysis of declared candidates' positions on a variety of current issues will be handed out at the Forum.

We sincerely invite you to attend the Mayoralty Forum to be held at Grant MacEwan Community College's city centre campus gymnasium, on 104 Avenue. The forum will take place on Wednesday, October 11, 1995, from 7:00pm to 9:00pm. Please RSVP to Carolyn Campbell at 426-4620. There is no charge for this event.

We look forward to seeing you there!

A ...WHAT?

by Gerald Andersen

Awomen. Earlier this month a group of women assembled in China for the World Conference on Women. This setting was established to discuss changes and ideas to improve the quality of life for all, however leaning more towards feminine issues. Some good, some radical.

This is the nineties and things are changing, (just in case you hadn't noticed). Sometimes change occurs at such a rapid pace that people can't adjust or just don't want to accept it. There is one change or form of change that I can't accept, won't accept and will not tolerate or conform to. This is when people start to alter or better yet tamper with Christianity and especially the Bible. There are Bibles out there that term God as a She. One would be led to believe that this is the type of Bible that these women in China read, because in one of their sessions the prayer ended with "AWOMEN". I don't know who they were praying to, but it sure wasn't the God that I pray to. My God, the Great I AM, is the same yesterday and today and forever (Hebrews 13:8-9). And right from the beginning, of the Bible that is, God is He (Genesis 1:16).

Postscript, the word AMEN, has nothing to do with gender. The original Hebrew word written in Hebrew is 'am'en. It means: firm, true, faithfull(ness), certainly, truly, so be it. It is not remaining firm or true if you change it to suit yourself. Alterations to Christianity and the Bible to suit ones own personal needs, desires and feelings just creates some free-willed religion of the nineties that has nothing to do with God. And if you want nothing to do with God now, He will have nothing to do with you on Judgement Day (Luke 13:27-28).

ASK MAGGIE

Dear Maggie;
I have been going with this beautiful, tall brunette here at Concordia College. Things were fine until she began displaying intelligence and as you know no relationship can function effectively with two know-it-alls. The problem now is she thinks she is as smart as any of us guys. It seems my options are to either find a way to straighten this woman out or dump her. I am writing to you because you are a woman who knows her place and may be able to help.
N.M. Jok

Dear Jok;
What does N.M. stand for, Narrow Minded? The only place you should put her is on her pedestal and then on the top of your priority list where she belongs. Yes Buddy, I do know where my place is and that is as the top of the ladder of success. I have very high marks and have been accepted into the best schools in the country. I'm not going to give ANY advice to you, but rather to her. Girlfriend, DUMP HIM!! As for you, have a nice life...I know she will as long as you're out of it!!

Your first Enemy
(and not your last!)
Maggie

Dear Maggie;
I have a dilemma. My best friend and I are in a "duel" for this really hot man! She and I feel "in love" with the same man at almost the same time. Unfortunately, she's also my room-mate. "John" and I work out of town together but he always comes home to her. Should I continue this "relationship" with "John" and keep my best friend in the dark, or tell her and maybe lose them both (besides a place to live)?

Confused

Dear Confused;
This shouldn't even be a dilemma. I can't believe that you would turn around and even do this to your best friend. You can control your feelings and who you "fall in love" with, especially if your best friend had him first. From the moment they started dating he should have been completely off limits for absolutely anything. Why did you pick him when there are plenty of fish in the sea. I think you should find a new place to live but alone this time so you don't sink your claws into anybody else!! Find a new place to live, tell her and get out while you're still in one piece. Whoever this guy is he couldn't be that good of a guy if he cheats. Why would you want a guy who cheats when a woman's eternal quest in the 90's is to find someone who doesn't cheat. This guy and the one in the previous column give other men a bad name. Why do you men wonder why woman always bash you? My advice, tell her and get out before you lose more than just a friendship.

Dear Maggie;
There is this guy who I really like at Concordia. My friends laugh at me because I like him so much. They also laugh because he isn't much to look at but his personality more than makes up for that. He really is not that bad looking. The only problem is that I can't seem to get his attention in the way that he will notice me as a potential mate and not just a friend. I have already started by being very affectionate towards him, but that only works up to a certain point. Should I take the direct approach Maggie or should I just let nature take its course? I'm worried that if I'm too direct he will get scared and leave and I won't even have his friendship. Maggie HELP!!

Can't wait FOREVER

Dear FOREVER;
I know how frustrating it can be when you like someone and everything else is in place but the rest of the relationship just cannot fall into place. If I were you I would hold off a little bit longer. Find a common ground or thread between you whether it be music, a favorite class or just some subject and work on that. Maybe he thinks you two don't have anything in common to try a relationship or move on to the next step, whatever that may be in his eyes. If that does not work then be forward. If he's got such a great personality and is outgoing on top of that then things should be O.K. Just to be on the safe side, make sure he knows that it's fine to just remain friends if things don't work out. The most important things to remember are not to play games, be mature about whatever happens, don't bring your hopes up, and don't wait around too long. There are other guys around that are looking for a relationship. If you wait too long and ignore others you just might miss out on something else that's better.

Maggie

ON CAMPUS

by Cheryl Price

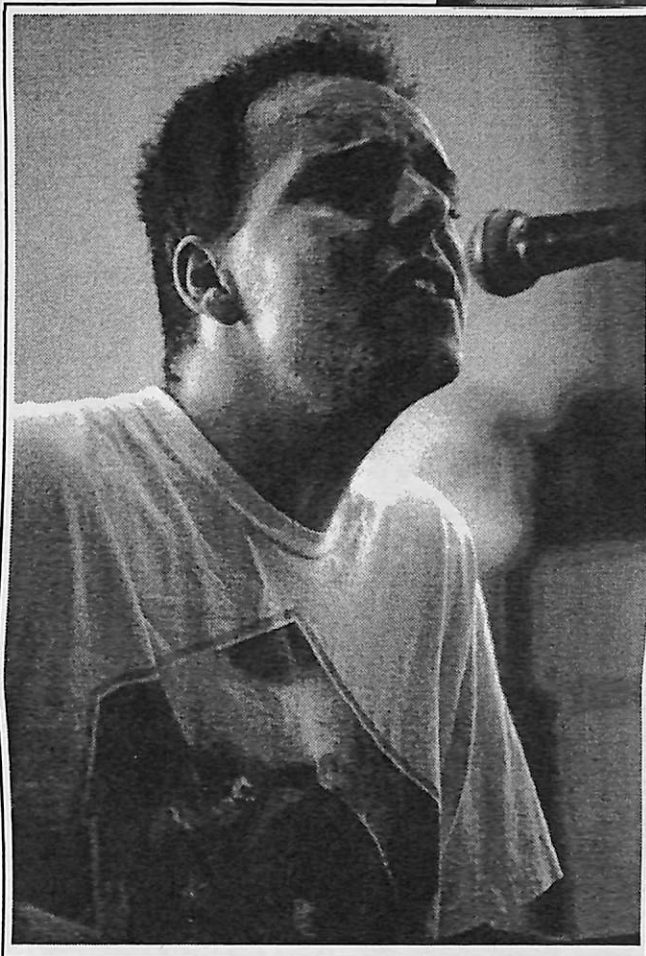

"Sandy, Danny." It was an exciting moment to hear those two names. Why? Because they were used to describe some of the events held during the CCSA's Welcome Week. Tegler Centre was enjoying a quiet summer when all of a sudden the eruption came. If you missed it, there were bands, movies, Sumo wrestling, and the exhilarating Rapid Fire theatre.

Being a curious reporter, I went about asking students about their feelings on the activities. We all know you can't please all of the people all of the time. Overall most of the students appreciated the effort to make Welcome Week as successful as can be.

Kelly, a first year Science student was partial to the Sumo wrestling and looks forward to future events. Lisa thinks the bands should be playing outdoors. Noise factor, she cites. Also, she would like to see more action or comedies when it comes to the movies.

Three anonymous students thought all was okay, but thoroughly enjoyed the Rapid Fire theatre.

Someone suggested, "Cut out the movies, get a BEER Garden."

Bavi, a first year Science student loved the movie about men's inner being. I think she was referring to Dumb & Dumber.

Yeah, overall it was a pretty successful and fun week, and thanks to those who took the time to answer my silly question. See you around campus, be on your toes. I need another story. Tah tah.

Attention: Environmentalists, Naturalists, Biologists and Students of all kinds.

As the CCSA Science Representative, I am organizing an environmental group. My concern for the environment is one of the reasons for initiating such a group. As a concerned student and citizen, it is my hope to make Concordia College well-known for its participation and support for environmental issues.

Sign-up sheets will be placed outside the CCSA office, and outside the CCSA Kiosk inside the Tegler center. Please include the times you will be available for meetings.

Topics will vary from waste reduction in school, car-pooling, to nationwide issues.

To make this venture positive and successful your involvement is crucial. With this in mind, jump aboard the eco-wagon!!!!!!

Look forward to seeing you there, thanks,

BLUES EXPLOSION! experimental remixes (1995)

Well drop your linen and start your grinning, don't let the name deceive you because this album elevates

BLUES EXPLOSION!

EXPERIMENTAL REMIXES EXTENDED PLAYING!

experimental blues rock to a new more Zen like plateau. The sublime multi-layering effects will take your mind and soul to new heights of revelation. This ain't no ordinary album boys and girls, and I think it's time to explain why...Just look at who's doing the remixes, MOBY, Beck Hanson (BECK), Mike Diamond (BEASTIE BOYS), and Mario Caldato Jr. just to name a few...Each adding their own special blend to Spencer's already unique style. But enough praise, let's look at the play by play.

The first track has a definite Mercury Rev feel with magical turntable proress and a perky percussion section that can only compliment the already majestic wah guitar. But wait, there's more, moving right along to tracks two and three we have "The Flavor", a comfortably suave and sophisticated song, driven by Hansen's matchless vocals and a sexy rhythm section brought to you by none other than the twins of style, Mic D and Mario C. I could say that those tracks would be enough to satisfy but I would be lying...the following track entitled "Soul Typecast", leave it at one word, BIZARRE. Here's a song that starts out pretty normal and then is remixed by none other but the grand Dub Narcotic Sound System. Chaos by any other name wouldn't sound so sweet...always changing, never predictable and leaving you breathless. Finally "la piece de resistance" a track called "Greyhound". This is where blues and ambient rave meet and a masterpiece is born, MOBY does his job and does it so well hat instrumentally it can't be described in words. (But it makes NIN's a warm place look silly). The first part of the song prepares one for the arrival of the genius of the Wu-tang Clan and the subtle message of the Killah Priest himself. (breath). But enough's enough; BUY IT. LIVE IT. LOVE IT. end.

URGE OVERKILL

Exit the Dragon (1995)

First things first, this ain't no Saturation, and those looking for that will be disappointed but this album has it's own unique properties which make it another amazing recording by one of my favorite bands. What I really admire about these guys is that they consistently put out a suave late seventies feel and yet are unafraid to experiment with sounds and effects in their musical style. Ultimately one could describe their music as Persona, and persona just seeps from their pores in such tracks as "Digital Black Epilogue", which spring images of Neil Diamond and Barbra Streisand at the academy awards. Keeping with the Diamondesque motif, tracks like "View of the Rain" and "The Monopoly", each of which provides a definite lounge feel that can't be beat. (Which the band tries to create). The guitarists, Nash Kato and Eddie "King" Roeser blend their virtuosity of talent with the hard driven percussion of Mr. Blackie O, thus creating a well timed and well constructed album, littered with creative songs. A particular note to a track called "The Mistake" which I have attributed as comparable to "Drop Out" (A song from their previous album), with a sub distorted aura which satirically delivers the same message about a scary world. If their last two albums give a note of things to come, this band will never cease to amaze and dazzle. So for those who enjoyed the feel they created for Pulp Fiction, grab a hold of the dragon. Later.

The Gather Ring

by Wendy Rabel

"The traveller's quest for love, warmth and song led him, as did others, to the place and the gathering began."

You now have the opportunity to have the Gather Ring's self titled release in your hot little hands!

The Gather Ring began 3 years ago when vocalist Roland Schulz and guitarist Craig Abramowski (present and former students of Concordia College), first combined their creative talents. Although their influences include past and future greats like The Doors, The Cult, Porno for Pyros and The Tea Party, this band has it's own powerful and unique sound.

Roland fronts the band with powerful, diverse vocals that lead the listener from soft melodies into energetic screams of desperation. Craig's style ranges from ten years of classical instruction combined with everything from Celtic music to Jimmy Hendrix.

Their music ranges from hard-edged alternative rock to mellow acoustic tunes. The disk is an eclectic trip through ten solid tracks, (and an impressive ghost track), that you can put in your stereo and listen to from beginning to end.

"Stumble" is a great example of this band's song writing ability and musical talent. "I Am the Sea" and "Flowering Judas" will satisfy the rock and roll lover; "Brave" and "Daisy" are poetic expressions of deep emotion...and this is just to name a few - you get to check out the rest of the tracks on your own!

The album will soon be in select-ed music stores near you, but you can pick it up today for $10.00 - just contact Roland or make inquiries at the CCSA office. Watch for The Gather Ring on campus and around the city this year!

A Response to Mr. Herrick

I'm afraid to gather ye rosebuds yet-as rosebuds smell of pain.
A tangled web whose beauty sets
Cast out to those who mistake their aims.

This woman reveals a cunning creature
Beckons danger before called by name
A master of Art displays her features Whose eyes dance to an eternal flame.

Oh, poor fool, do take my warming!
Flee as quick her soft oiled skin.
Her face may launch a thousand ships
Then sink thee very next morning.

Only with age that Knowledge brings the eyes to learn this wily game
Rosebuds then will be my thing
For so long as love do hearts remain.

The New Fall Season

by Lise Tellier

For many television addicts across North America, Thursday night seemed to be the night to catch the brand new shows, and returning favorites of the new fall season.

Friends: Starring Courtney Cox, Lisa Kudrow, Matt Leblanc and the rest of the ultra-hip twenty-something stars. If you remember last season's cliff-hanger, it left us watching Rachel waiting to meet Ross at the airport. For fans of Friends, we know that Ross was secretly in love with Rachel for years. Rachel had just found out and was willing to take a chance on relationship with Ross. However, when she arrived at the airport, she found Ross had found someone else.

Well the first show left no disappointment, a flash of the new season ahead. If you remember last, Ross was secretly yearning for Rachel, but something tells me this year the tables have turned, Rachel will be secretly yearning for Ross. This is somewhat reminiscent of the former Cosby Show spin-off, A Different World, of the Whitley/Duane Wayne scenario, but the characters in Friends don't annoy you like Whitley Gilbert.

It was great to see that Friends has not lost it's flair that has made it such a mega his in the first place. The subplots of the rest of the ensemble cast were just as entertaining: the forever dead-brained Phoebe mistakenly cut Monica's hair, and Chandler was "cupped" by a very bad tailor. There is no doubt this season will be just as great as the last.

THE SINGLE GUY:

This brand new show starring Johnathan Silverman seemed to be done in a Friends style, with a twenty something cast, and an ensemble feel. Silverman plays 'the single guy', whose friends are all married, and want to set him up. Although the first show was cute, the question really remains if the writers will be able to continue producing the laughs before the audience grows tired of following our single guy around on various dates.

In the first episode, Johnathan is set up with a boring, egotistic name dropper, played by Olivia D'Abo of Wonder Years fame. Neither of them are interested with one another, but for some reason, they end up going out for drinks and everything turns out to be even more of a disaster.

The bottom line is that this show is only moderately funny, and it is very predictable. The only thing that will save The Single Guy from a mid-season cancellation is its great time slot between Friends and Seinfeld, guaranteeing we will be seeing more of The Single Guy.

PSYCH YOURSELF UP

by Dr. Colleen Hammermaster Counseling Psychologist

Whether you are a new student at Concordia College or a returning veteran, it takes the first few weeks of classes to get into the academic groove. This is a time of developing new routines. For example, you now set your alarm clock for 6:30 a.m. rather than not setting it at all (unless, of course, you had a summer job). You dig out the good old bookbag and try to remember to pack your timetable, book list, and bus pass or money for parking. You also mentally prepare to become a student, and for some of us, getting our "gray matter" into working order is no easy task!

Something else very critical happens as we mentally prepare to return to school and this involves our mental attitude. Some students have the mental attitude that university is a scary place and that university instructors are sadistic hairy monsters whose main purpose is to inflict pain upon students. Now although some instructors may in fact be hairy (myself excluded) the instructors at Concordia want to make learning as painless (and even fun) as possible.

The mindset that you bring with you has a strong influence on your satisfaction while at Concordia - not to mention your academic success. If you see the challenges that lie in the year ahead as threatening and overwhelming, you may shy away from them before you have a chance to take them on. On the other hand, if you adopt the attitude that this year will be an adventure and you're ready to take it on, you will be more able to tackle the tasks of each new day.

So as you prepare for a new academic year, take time also to prepare yourself mentally. In layman's terms "psych yourself up" for a year of exciting opportunities. Develop an expectation for success, then work to make that happen.

"GIMME A BREAK" will run again September 25-29, 1995
If you purchase anything in Concordia's Cafeteria you will receive a chance to win A DISCMAN - YES A DISCMAN! worth over $150.00.
We have two to give away as well as many other prizes.
If you need coffee supplies ask Rikki at the coffee shop for a price list. We beat Safeway on most items!

THUNDER ATHLETICS

SOCCER SUNDAY, A REAL KICK IN THE GRASS!

by Matthew Cassie
A.C.A.C. Soccer Sunday September 17
Concordia 1
N.A.I.T. 6
The Concordia Thunder men's soccer team played their second game of the 1995 season Sunday against the N.A.I.T. Oaks. N.A.I.T. is clearly the powerhouse of the northern division and therefore the means by which other northern teams must measure themselves. This game would thus be a big test for the Thunder; unfortunately, it would be a test they would fail. The backdrop for the game was in Riel park in St. Albert, a truly first class soccer facility.

There was only one adversity that both teams would have to deal with, a neighboring tractor pull which produced the constant chatter of a P.A. System and the roar of engines perhaps distracted the players a bit. The only weather factor was the cool temperature, but this day would get much cooler for the Thunder.

The Oaks opened the scoring in the first few minutes of action and then controlled what appeared to be a somewhat intimidated Thunder team. Concordia's defence and goaltending kept it a game while the midfield and forwards settled down. The Thunder got into the game at about the twenty minute mark of the first half, putting together some good-looking offensive opportunities but just not being able to finish them. What was once a one sided contest was now a game with two teams on the field. The Thunder escaped some late first half pressure and added some of their own to end the half looking like a confident team in the same class as the strong Oaks.

The Oaks came out of the locker room looking like the team that wanted the game more. Two quick N.A.I.T. goals gave the momentum of the game back to the Oaks, but the Thunder refused to concede defeat at this point. Although the Thunder was still fighting, a fourth N.A.I.T. goal sealed their fate on this day. The fifth and sixth goals that followed stripped what little dignity our boys had left. The Thunder was able to gain some of that dignity back by breaking the N.A.I.T. shutout on a penalty shot on the last play of the game.

Although the Thunder was soundly beat in this one, they did show in the first half that they could play with a team like N.A.I.T., but to be successful they have to play with more heart. As the New Jersey Devils proved last year in the Stanley Cup playoffs, playing with lots of heart and desire can be worth more than just pure talent on paper. Perhaps if there were some loud cheering fans in attendance this could also help.

The modest crowd of 24 were entertained at half time by the N.A.I.T. substitutes who were warming up for second half action. Actually, show-boating would be a more accurate description. The second half was not to be a very memorable experience for the Thunder.

THUNDER LEAVING TOWN IF NO STORM SOON?

by Matthew Cassie

For those of us that have lived in the city of champions for the past three years, the concept of Edmonton based teams threatening to leave town is nothing new. First it was the Oilers. For three years we listened to Peter Pocklington cry that if he did not get a new lease deal on the coliseum he would bring in the moving trucks and take the Oilers and their five Stanley cup banners to a large American market. Then just last winter Hugh Campbell declared a state of emergency in the Eskimo camp, stating "buy tickets or else". Well, it was unclear what the "or else" would be, but just as the Oil had done, the Esks had issued an ultimatum.

Now, is it possible that if more of you do not show up to Thunder athletic events, that they will eventually cave in to the temptation of moving to a large American market. Ya, perhaps Anaheim, the hockey team could dress up like ducks while the soccer team like Mickey Mouse. In all seriousness though folks, we know that will never happen; besides, I am sure our guys and girls would never go for those suits. So why should you attend Thunder athletic events? These, in my opinion are the best reasons:

1. For starts, unlike Peter Pocklington, the College will never hold a gun to your head and force you to go, but then you never know, "Puck" might just buy the school.

2. These athletes have no million dollar contracts, they play for the love of their sport

3. Unlike Sammy Garza, formally of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, these folks will not flip you the finger, or tell you where to go, unless of course, you really deserve it.

4. Admission is FREE! (the average Oiler ticket price is about thirty bucks). That leaves you extra money for a world famous Chateau Agricom german sausage, fries, and an under-sized, overpriced pop.

5. For those who are unable to afford that sixty dollar gold club Oiler ticket, it's nice for a change to be close enough to the ice to tell when the game has actually started and when it's finished.

6. For those of you who choose to attend a soccer game, you actually get to sit or stand at field level, can you imagine what people in Italy would do for such a privilege!

In all seriousness folks, these student athletes give a great deal of time to college athletics and represent each one of us throughout the province in a first class manner. All I ask you is to give some of your time and go out to support these terrific athletes. If every student went to one Thunder Athletic event it would make a big difference. So get a group of friends together and go to a game or two, besides, the athletic department needs to justify that new events board in the parking lot.

RON LOW FINDS EDMONTON'S HIDDEN OIL GUSHER

by Trevor High

The Edmonton Oilers seem to have a different aura about themselves this season. They're still young and maturing and many key players such as Jason Arnott, Miroslav Satan and Todd Marchant have improved immensely from last season. Age aside, the Oilers appear to have all the key ingredients for a successful season.

If their success and performance in the pre-season can carry over to the regular season, the Oiler's should finish in good standing this season. After the 6-3 win last Wednesday, the Oilers appear to be more self-confident than ever. The pre-season average is much better than last year's (333 average). They seem to have more success this season because they're working as a team, and not as individuals looking for points..

The Oilers look more and more like play-off contenders this season, not only because of their team unity and improved skill, but because of confidence, pride, motivation, and increased effort. Jason Arnott is a prime example of this improvement. Last season, Arnott only played good, tough hockey when he wanted to. This season however, his attitude has changed. Thus far, Arnott has played tough hockey every game because he is beginning to understand his role on the team. The maturity he is showing is keeping him out of the box. Instead, his extra ice time enables the Oilers to be more of a threat when it comes to scoring opportunities. Perhaps the Oilers are finding the leader they need to be a more confident team.

However, the big question is, are the Oilers Stanley Cup contenders? This question can only be answered by time. However, for the Oilers to enjoy any success the time has come for supporters to rise up and stand behind their team. The last couple of years have been spent tearing down Oiler tradition, time to rebuild.

Let's Stop Victimized Society

by J.M.

Bleeding hearts the lot of ya! Ya sit back on your haunches like a trained hound dog waiten to be told wat tado. Well, I aint. Now dat im educated and more smarter, I understand that our society is plagued with apathy.

You would rather have murderers hanging around an exclusive health farm or penitentiary surrounded by cable TV, fully equipped gyms, ball diamonds and even tennis courts and hockey rinks, and let's not forget con-jugal visits. For you, these kinds of facilities might cost $100-200 per night on a weekend getaway, but at least you might get your money's worth. Instead, society would have you believe that it's more responsible have murderers sit back and relax while we pay the $100,000 per year it costs to keep them there. It doesn't take a Ph.D. to realize that millions and millions of dollars are wasted needlessly. With thousands of hungry, homeless and needy Canadians, money would be better spent on those deserving assistance than those convicted of abominations.

Now that Law has taken precedence over Justice, society is at the mercy of gutless politicians, an inefficient judicial system and bureaucratic crap. Justice is no longer swift, nor does it usually fit the crime. Crime pays; and if you don't believe me look around. Is it the hard working man or woman who has money to spare? No, it the criminals and their lawyers. Let's face it, when Karla admits to her involvement in the killing of at least two young girls and receives a sentence that could have her out on parole in five years something is definitely wrong with the system. I don't care how polite or cooperative she has been with the Crown, killing two people deserves more than a slap on just isn't worth it.

The justice system in this country is in desperate need of a major overhaul. We need to reinstate capital punishment and stiffen ALL penalties for those guilty of heinous crimes instead of looking the other way hoping the problem will resolve itself. Forget it! It won't happen. Capital punishment should be mandatory for all convicted of premeditated murder and repeat sex offenders. Giving repeat sex offenders a six month or a one year sentence is simply telling them that next time they need to be a little more careful and don't get caught again.

I know there are many bleeding hearts out there that believe an innocent person may be unjustly convicted and executed and I can appreciate their concerns; but we're not talking about one injustice here - this about restoring justice and harmony to a society that is tired of being a victim. It's time to close the text books on sympathetic judges, high priced lawyers and political wimps. It's time Canadians told them straight out that society is NOT RESPONSIBLE for anyone committing crimes of this nature and that society should not be held accountable, nor made to pay for the crimes committed by the likes of Karla or Paul.

The time has come to get serious about punishing (and I do mean punishing) criminals for their crimes. If so, a ray of hope may yet shine upon us and restore optimism to it's proper place in society. On the other hand it may also indicate to future culprits that if you do the crime, it could lead to your demise.

And then there's Paul; his trial already cost Canadian tax payers a million dollars, and should he serve his 25 years he'll cost you and I another 2.5 million. Excuse me, but he
