

and now for something completely important...

Concordia Students,

This is the second of our new weekly e-communiqés containing important information for all students. (If you missed the first, check your email from August 27th.)

Concordia is also beginning to send its official communications with you through your student e-mail instead of using paper and snail-mail. Therefore it is essential that you open and read your Concordia email, including this newsletter.

Below you will find the headlines for this week—read on!

A notice from the Circulation Desk:

It's important to keep track of what you've borrowed from the library. Library notices (heads up, fines, recalls, lost items) are sent to the email address attached to your library record. If you previously forwarded your student email to a different account and intend to continue that practice, don't forget to set it up from your new student Gmail account. Not receiving a library notice is not an acceptable reason for a fines appeal. .

Please ensure you have changed any email forwarding prior to September 30th."

New Display in the Library Gallery:

William Quast taught at Concordia High School from 1981 to 1996. William says "My banners are spiritual in nature and exhibit organic elements juxtaposed to crisp clean lines which act as barriers of personal resistance. My paintings carry on this tradition which may appear at times whimsical, but are no less profound."

His banners and paintings have appeared at churches, symposia and many other venues. We are happy to exhibit some of his work in the Library Gallery. You are welcome to come any time during library open hours to view the exhibit.
